- A SUDDEN SHOWER

Barefooted boys scud up the street Or skurry under sheltering sheds; And schoolgirl faces, pale and sweet, Gleam from the shawls about their heads.

Doors bang; and mother-voices call From alien homes; and rusty gates Are slammed; and high above it all, The thunder grim reverberates.

And then, abrupt—the rain! the rain! The earth lies gasping; and the eyes Behind the streaming windowpane Smile at the trouble of the skies.

The highway smokes, sharp echoes ring; The cattle bawl and cow-bells clank. And into town comes galloping The farmer's horse, with steaming flank.

The swallow dips beneath the eaves And flirts his plumes and folds his wings. And under the Catawba leaves The caterpillar curls and clings.

The bumblebee is pelted down The wet stem of the hollyhock; And sullenly, in spattered brown, The cricket leaps the garden-walk.

Within, the baby claps his hands And crows with rapture strange and vague. Without, beneath the rose-bush stands A dripping rooster on one leg.

The Days and Nights Of the Moon by Bill Felker

O Lady Moon, your horns point toward the east; Shine, be increased:

O Lady Moon, your horns point toward the west; Wane, be at rest.

-Christina Rossetti

Even though the moon's appearance and position are different each day, the moon's shape and place on any one lunar day is quite similar to its appearance on the same day in every one of its cycles.

For example, on its first day, the new moon rises near dawn-coming up (like the sun) earlier in the summer than in the winter. The first-day moon sets at dusk-again later in the summer than in the winter. This moon is always overhead around noon. Every month of every year, the new moon rises and sets at a slightly different time, but that time is consistently tied to early morning and evening twilight.

As the moon ages, its visibility increases and it becomes a thin crescent moon (its bright surface appearing a little like a backwards "C"-its horns pointing east). Between the first and seventh lunar days, moonrise shifts gradually towards midday and moonset moves toward midnight at an average rate of about an hour each day.

The moon enters its second quarter at the age of eight or nine days. On its second-quarter day, the moon always rises close to 12:00 p.m., sets within an hour of 12:00 a.m. and is overhead at about 6:00 p.m. Half of its surface is bright at that time.

As it waxes through its second phase, the moon becomes "gibbous"—that is to say, its bright surface is no longer thin and shaped like a crescent but instead seems to bulge or balloon out, its rounded portion facing west or to your right. And as it becomes fuller, this gibbous waxing moon rises later and later in the afternoon, setting later and later at night, coming overhead in the late evening.

By the time it becomes completely full on the 15th, 16th or 17th lunar day, the moon always rises near sunset, sets near dawn, and is overhead a little after midnight.

As it wanes through its third quarter, the moon turns from full once again to gibbous. Coming up later at night, going down later in the morning, it becomes thinner until it is again a half moon, the rounded portion facing to your left, at which point it becomes a fourth-quarter moon.

Although the moon can enter its final phase on its 22nd, 23rd, 24th, or 25th day-showing far greater variation than entry into its other phases-that aging moon always rises close to midnight and sets early in the afternoon, reaching a position overhead around 6:00 a.m.

Then as the lunar surface continues to darken, the moon once again becomes a thin crescent (looking, this time, like a regular "C"-its horns facing west), rising later each morning, setting later in the afternoon until it reaches an age of 29 or 30 days. At that time, its surface is completely shaded, and it is the new moon once again. Although evenings are dark during the moon's fourth quarter, the rising crescent brightens the southeast in the early morning.

THE WAY TO THE ARBUTUS

I cannot remember the names of roads and hills, I remember only where the wild flowers grow; By an old stone cellar there are daffodils And bluets where a pasture brook runs slow.

I cannot remember which is east or west, I remember only where a lady's-slipper stood; And I recall arbutus, growing best Around a certain corner of a certain wood.

I cannot remember the path that winds along there, I remember only a wild rose in the lane Where you cross by a thicket beyond the maidenhair, Past the place I found a gentian in the rain.

Currants Abound at Cherry Hill Farm

by Charles C. Sutton

Anyone who has ever picked berries by hand knows how rewarding the task can be despite the tedious, hard work. But suppose you have a commercial berry farm, then lots of help is needed in a short time. Berry growers Peter and Victoria Hingston of Springfield, VT, have the perfect solution-an amazing-to-see-working berry picking harvester, which Peter actually built from scratch several years ago. "It took a whole winter's work and $4,000 worth of parts, many ordered from England," Vicky remembers. (A similar factory-built harvester from Poland costs $30,000). Visit their web site and there's a short video of the harvester in action (cherryhillfarmvt.com), or better yet, do some berry picking there yourself and the miracle machine may be in action. When it's working, Peter in a tractor pulls the device carefully down the currant berry rows while Vicky and daughter Josie man the collection buckets at the rear.

"Currently our hand-made machine harvests black and red currant berries from some 10,000 bushes," says Peter. "And we could use much more." Their farm also produces pink currants, red and black raspberries, gooseberries, elderberries and a few Concord grapes. Peter likes to experiment with other fruits and is growing some quince trees.

The harvested berries are pressed into juice or purees, and used for their own jams (red currant, black currant, raspberry, and raspberry black currant), packaged under the Vicky Day label. Juices, fresh or frozen, and whole fruit, is sold to local producers of wines and other beverages, ice cream, and fruit products.

Among their customers are Vermont Mystic Pies, Walpole Creamery and Putney Mountain Wine who makes Vermont Cassis, a rich, lucious dessert wine from the Hingston's black currants. And they at the Market on the Green in Woodstock, Victoria Hingston processes currants in the field with daughter Josie at Cherry Hill Farm in Springfield, VT.

VT on every summer Wednesday from 3 to 6 with jam, juice and fresh fruit as it ripens. The couple uses 4,000 pounds of berry juices or purees for their own jams. A new product is Just So Vermont" juices in two flavors: black currant with lime and black currant with ginger. Peter said the refreshing drinks can be a substitute for wine.

Peter and Victoria were in the small fruit producing business in England before coming to Vermont in 1997 and establishing a new berry-growing farm on 110 acres on Cherry Hill in Springfield. The couple decided not to grow apples because they wanted crops that didn't have to be sprayed, but would just grow and produce naturally.

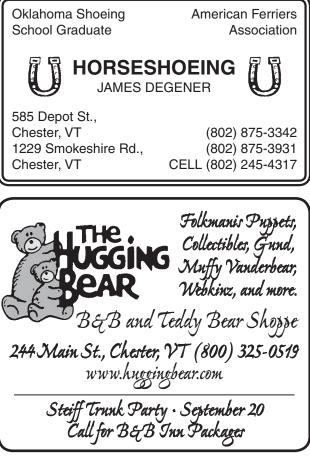

Cherry Hill Farm is located at 409 Highland Rd., Springfield, VT. (802) 885-5088, www.cherryhillfarmvt.com. The U-Pick farm is open summers 8 a.m. to 4 p.m., call in advance. Vicky Day products are available statewide at many food co-ops and at farmers' markets. The preserves and the Just So Vermont juices are available by mail from their website.

BERRY BEST BLUEBERRY MUFFINS

1 cup flour 3/4 cup whole-wheat pastry flour ³⁄₄ cup sugar 1 tablespoon baking powder 1 tsp. finely shredded lemon peel

2 egg whites ²/₃ cup buttermilk ¹/₃ cup applesauce 1 teaspoon vanilla 1 cup blueberries

Preheat the oven to 400°F. Prepare six large, 3-inch muffin cups. Stir together both flours, sugar, baking powder and lemon peel, making sure all is evenly distributed. Make a well in the center of the mixture. In a small bowl, beat the egg whites until foamy. Stir in the buttermilk, applesauce and vanilla. Add the liquid mixture to the dry mixture and stir until just moistened. Fold in the blueberries. Spoon the batter into the prepared cups, filling each 3/4 full. Bake for 22 to 25 minutes or until a toothpick inserted in the center comes out clean. Cool the muffins in the pan for five minutes. Then remove from pan and enjoy.

2¹/₂ cups raspberries ²/₃ cup sugar 1¹/₂ cups flour

1/4 teaspoon salt 1 stick plus 2 tablespoons butter

1 tablespoon baking powder ¹/₂ cup heavy cream

Preheat oven to 350°. Butter an 8x8 inch shallow baking dish. Place raspberries in the dish and sprinkle with ¹/₃ cup of sugar. Combine flour, baking powder and salt. Add the stick of butter in pieces and create a lumpy mixture. Add cream and combine until dough forms. Dough will be soft and sticky like a biscuit; if need be, add a splash more of cream. Spoon dough over the raspberries. Melt remaining 2 tablespoons butter and drizzle over the mounds of dough. Sprinkle with remaining ¹/₃ cup sugar. Bake about 30 to 40 minutes or until dough and fruit are cooked through and dough is lightly browned. Serve with whipped cream. Serves 6-8.

In a bowl, combine 3/4 cup sugar and flour. Whisk in sour cream and vanilla. Arrange the raspberries evenly in the pie shell. Spread sour cream mixture over the berries. Combine flour, 2 teaspoons sugar, and melted butter or margarine, until mixture forms crumbles. Sprinkle over pie. Bake at 400°F (205°C) for 30 to 40 minutes, or until pastry and filling are golden. Cool on rack. Serve same day at room temperature.

SUMMER BLUEBERRY "POP" PIE

4 cup fresh blueberries	3 tablespoons cornstarch
1 cup sugar	1 tablespoon butter
1 tablespoon lemon juice

Prepare 9" pie shell, bake until golden brown. Cool. Place 2 cups raw berries into cooled pie shell. Cook 2 cups berries, water, sugar, lemon juice, cornstarch and salt until thick. Stir in butter. Pour over raw berries in pie shell. Chill. Serve with whipped cream if desired.

SOUTHERN RASPBERRY CORNBREAD

2 cups white corn meal	1 egg
¹ / ₄ teaspoon soda	1 cup molasses or maple

H.N. Williams Store in Dorset, VT, early 1900s.

170 Years of History at H. N. Williams Store in Dorset, VT

by Charles C. Sutton

Visit the H.N.Williams store in Dorset, Vermont, today and one can imagine what it might have been like here more than 170 years ago when its founder William Williams opened a harness shop in an old barn on this site at the south end of town.

The shop was soon a successful tannery where harnesses, shoes, boots and other leather goods were made and sold. Records show handmade shoes sold for $1.25 a pair.

Over the wall in the coffee area of the store today are the specialized leather-making tools that were used in that very room to make harnesses and other gear for the horse 'n buggy days. Ornate little business cards of that era stuck behind the tools remind us of the traveling vendors of those earlier times. The store is no museum, but some old traditions remain like wearing leather cash pouches in lieu of a cash register.

Williams passed the shop on to his sons, Charles and George who continued making harnesses, but added grain to their inventory. They also were savvy enough to see the need for and started a home delivery business.

George's son, Herbert Norton Williams took over in 1905 name it carries today. Remarkable is the business has been run by family members ever since it opened in 1840!

Herbert expanded the inventory to include sleights and wagons, ammunition, gramophones, and he even rented bicycles. He purchased a nearby carriage barn and had it hauled to the store site by a horse team and rollers during the winter. This added-on building (on the left) is part of the store today.

The advent of motorized cars and trucks diminished the need for horse tack and gear, but the store adjusted and added food, hardware items, and paint.

Herbert's daughter, Ada and her husband Austin Rumney took over during World War II and were the proprietors for the next 40 years. They built their own sugar house behind the store and for many years were one of the largest maple syrup producers in the area. Austin also did custom tractor work with his John Deere. During those four decades the store basically remained unchanged.

Today's manager-owner William Williams (Billy) Brownlee recalls how his parents (Ruth Williams and Dennis Brownlee) continually readjusted the inventory to better serve the changing needs of the community. He started working in the store himself at age 12, and he recalls it was hard to find a particular item for a customer because the huge inventory was spread all over the place, even though little rooms were devoted to select items like footwear, sporting goods, farm and pet supplies.

Billy, who earned a degree in business from UVM, feels the challenge of maintaining an historic profile and keeping the store profitable and viable during changing economic times. His customers include year-round Dorset residents, second homeowners in the summer, farmers, hunters in the fall, summer tourists, outdoors people, and workers in varying trades.

A major renovation project was undertaken in 2007 which included adding a basement under the left side of the store with new and extra-large supporting timbers, but retaining the original wooden floors. This provides their own areas for sporting goods and hardware, and more space for its large and inviting clothing and footwear collection—a major sale item of the store today.

The renovation also included the addition of a deli which features salads, sandwiches, daily specials and soups. One of its soups—a tomato-cheddar—won first place in a recent food competition. Among it's specials are BBO pulled pork and sesame chicken, as well as vegan, vegetarian and and turned the shop into a country store, H. N. Williams—a gluten-free dishes, and specialty salads. The deli also offers a catering service.

> The store hosts a farmers summer market which draws shoppers looking for fresh vegetables and other locally-raised farm products. Billy feels the store has built a loyalty and trust over the years by providing quality products. The upscale inventory includes more Vermont-made items, organic grains and seeds, and products to serve the part-time home farm and gardener.

> Billy is married to the former Blair Chamberlain and has a two-year-old daughter Kate, a five-year-old son Max and a 12-year-old stepson Willie. Whether one of them will want to carry on the family-owned store tradition is too far off for him to wonder or worry about now, Billy says. But let's hope so! station of the second s take the kids fishing can seem like a mystery if you haven't ventured out before, but the Vermont Fish and Wildlife Department just provided some clues to make it a lot easier by putting together a web-based list of 23 familyfriendly fishing hotspots.

Your kids are growing up so fast it won't be long before they're on their own. What memories will you be able to share with them? Chances are they won't remember their best day of watching television, but take them fishing and you'll make memories you can share for a lifetime.

"Vermont offers many opportunities to enjoy fishing with family and friends,' said Vermont Fish and Wildlife Commissioner Patrick Berry. "We've asked our experts, our fishery biologists, to compile this list of family-friendly fishing opportunities. They've chosen locations across the state where you can take the kids fishing and have an excellent chance of catching some fish. This list offers just a taste of countless fishing opportunities across Vermont—you Finding a good place to could spend a lifetime exploring our rivers and lakes and never run out of new places to go."

All the destinations provide opportunities to fish from shore, and at some, you can rent a boat or launch your own. Some locations also offer other fun activities like swimming and playgrounds to complement your fishing

"In Vermont, kids under 15 don't need a fishing license, reduced fee licenses are available for anglers 15 to 17 years old, and licenses for adults are an absolute bargain compared to the cost of other recreation," said Berry. "It's time to get out there and make some great memories for the whole family."

Go to Vermont Fish and Wildlife's website: vtfishandwildlife.com. Look under "Fishing" and click on 'Family Fishing Hotspots."

Mississquoi National Wildlife Refuge Kids' Fishing Derby

Missisquoi National Wildlife Refuge in Swanton, VT is preparing for their annual kid's fishing derby on Saturday, July 30, 2011. The gate will open at 8 a.m. and we expect to wind up the event by about 1 p.m.

After considerable clean up along Macs Bend Rd. and along the banks of the Missisquoi River, enough progress has been made to provide a safe and accessible opportunity for young anglers and their families to enjoy a morning of fishing at this annual event on the refuge

The derby will take place at it's normal location at the Refuge along Macs Bend Road beginning at Louie's Landing boat launch located approximately 3 miles from Swanton Village on RT. 78. The gate to Macs Bend Rd. will open at 8:00 a.m. There is no fee to participate. Night crawlers will be provided.

The flooding in Lake Champlain and along the Missisquoi River have required considerable cleanup along the area where fishing ticipants bring a lawn chair or other portable seating as the river bank has accumulated significant sediment not yet completely covered by vegetation and could be slippery and a bit muddy if we receive any rain just prior to the event day.

Every child at the derby will receive a free goody bag containing fishing related items that can be used for future fishing activities. There will be a random drawing of prize items as well as informational and educational displays and activities.

We will serve a free light lunch of hot dogs, chips, ice cream and lemonade.

Mississquoi National Wildlife Refuge is located on the shores of Lake Champlain in Swanton, VT.

Please register youngsters 15 and under for the derby contacting Dave Frisque at (802) 868-4781 or email: Dave_Frisque@fws. gov. Website: www.fws.gov/ northeast/missisquoi.

*—*Harvesting Fruits — And Other Summer Gardening Tips

by Charlie Nardozzi, Horticulturist and Leonard Perry, UVM Extension Horticulturist

Harvesting produce and fruits regularly, and keeping up with watering and fertilizing containers, are some of the gardening tips for this month.

Harvest tomatoes, zucchini, beans, and other fruiting crops frequently to encourage continued production. Remove any fruits that have gone by unless you're in competition for the biggest zucchini! You don't want the plant to produce mature seeds because that will signal that it's time to slow down fruit production.

In the past, the recommendation was to remove spent blooms on petunias to encourage more blooms, and cut back leggy growth to keep plants tidy. Rather than snipping off the ends of the longest vines, they were cut back to within 3 or 4 inches of the soil line. From there they would sprout to give a fuller, bushier plant. Most modern petunias are "selfcleaning," that is their spent blossoms just fade and fall off so you don't need to remove them by hand. And they keep on blooming, so you don't need to cut them back But if you have older cultivars (cultivated varieties), such as heirlooms or those you grew from seed, you may need to do this if they stop blooming.

Check container-grown plants frequently, and water as necessary to keep soil moist. Soil can dry out very quickly, especially in small containers and those made of clay. Hanging baskets, especially those lined with sphagnum moss or coir (the rough tan material made of coconut husk fibers), for the rest of the season. Add a dilute fish emulsion-or seaweed-based fertilizer to the water each time you water, or a synthetic liquid or slow release fertilizer, depending on your gardening philosophy.

Birds love blueberries as much as we do, so protect bushes with netting. Rather than draping the netting over the bush (birds will be able to reach the berries) use stakes to suspend the netting over the shrub. Secure the netting to the ground to prevent birds from sneaking in.

Stop pruning trees and shrubs. Any pruning done after midsummer (early July) will stimulate new growth that might not have enough time to harden off before cold weather arrives. This can result in winter injury to the plant. Of course you should prune off any branches broken by wind or in storms.

Now's the time when strawberry beds can become a mass of baby plants. Renovate the beds, controlling the runners, encouraging them to root where you want them. Keep the bed well mulched and watered.

Visit a local perennial nursery to see what's in bloom and get some design ideas. You can find a listing of specialty Vermont nurseries online at pss.uvm.edu/ppp/vpdgli.html.

I wonder if they like it-being trees? I suppose they do.

It must feel good to have the ground so flat, And feel yourself stand right straight up like that So stiff in the middle—and then branch at ease, Big boughs that arch, small ones that bend and blow, And all those fringy leaves that flutter so. You'd think they'd break off at the lower end When the wind fills them, and their great heads bend. But then you think of all the roots they drop, As much at bottom as there is on top,-A double tree, widespread in earth and air Like a reflection in the water there.

But I think they like wind best. From the light touch That lets the leaves whisper and kiss so much, To the great swinging, tossing, flying wide, And all the time so stiff and strong inside! And the big winds, that pull, and make them feel How long their roots are, and the earth how leal!

And O the blossoms! And the wild seeds lost! And jewelled martyrdom of fiery frost! And fruit-trees. I'd forgotten. No cold gem, But to be apples—

LOYALTY

He may be six kinds of a liar, He may be ten kinds of a fool, He may be a wicked highflyer Beyond any reason or rule; There may be a shadow above him Of ruin and woes to impend, And I may not respect, but I love him, Because—well, because he's my friend. I know he has faults by the billion, But his faults are a portion of him; I know that his record's vermilion, And he's far from the sweet Seraphim; But he's always been square with yours truly, Ready to give or to lend, And if he is wild and unruly, I like him-because he's my friend. I criticize him but I do it In just a frank, comradely key, And back-biting gossips will rue it If ever they knock him to me! I never make diagrams of him, No maps of his soul have I penned; I don't analyze—I just love him, Because-well, because he's my friend.

- Drifting Downstream

by Bill Felker

Infinite numbers, delicacies, smells, With hues on hues expression cannot paint, The breath of Nature and her endless bloom.

-James Thomson

Sitting with our faces now up-stream, we studied the landscape by degrees, as one unrolls a maprock, tree, house, hill, and meadow assuming new and varying position as wind and water shifted the scene, and there was variety enough for our entertainment in the metamorphoses of the simplest objects.

-Henry David Thoreau

The sense of the passing days often confuses me, and I need more and more days in order to find out what they might mean. I must have forgotten the first time, I tell myself, or I must have missed something. I feel that if I simply repeat an act or an observation or a day, I will finally see something different or see what I thought I saw once before, or what I should have or might have seen, and that I will probe the truth a little further, learn other secrets, find what I must have been looking for. But repetition calls my bluff. My perspective changes every time I begin again. The more days I have, the less I know. Each day is its own master, and my awareness of its nature fluctuates with the intricate interplay of light and shape, sound and texture and emotion.

My mind, setting its attention to a particular memory or scent or interaction, is carried by associations to create a new physical and psychological landscape. A slight shift of the season or marker or mood produces an entirely different set of connections, with kaleidoscopic results, different patterns with truly uncountable combinations and colors, reforming, adjusting, reshaping at the slightest movement or change of view.

Like Thoreau's persona watching "the landscape by degrees" on his trip down the Concord and Merrimack Rivers, I drift downstream through Thomson's "infinite numbers, delicacies, smells, with hues on hues," unrolling the map of the days in a way that disarms metaphysical concerns, and in a way that reveals arbitrary bonds and ephemeral, instantaneous seasons.

The hunger for repetition, teaches the river, is the deceptive nunger for permanence. The metamorphosis is terminal, it

Summer Blues

You got to understand: here Winter stays six months a year— Mean, mean winters and too long. Ninety days is what we get, just Ninety days of frost free weather. I know you don't believe it but... Ninety days is all we get. Just Ninety days of frost free weather.

And in that lousy, puny, crummy, Stinkin', measly ninety days we just Got to get outside and get together!

Now I said, ninety days is all we get. Just Ninety days of frost-free weather (Believe it, honey, 'cause it's true) Ninety days is all we get, just Ninety days of summer weather. So you can see how we just got to, we Just got to get outside and get together.

> I said, OUTSIDE! OUTSIDE! We got to get OUTSIDE! And get together.

And in those ninety days we got to: Grow tomatoes, beans, potatoes, Corn, squash, cucumbers and thyme. Have barbecues, and a day out on a Mountain we can climb.

We got to:

Raise some flowers and some pigs Build a shed and mow the lawn, Pick blueberries and mushrooms And go skinny-dippin' in the pond.

Got to:

Go to the fair, have sex with warm feet Put up a thousand thousand tons of hay, Go to some dances out of doors And cop some rays!

Ow! Ninety days is all we get. Just ninety days of frost free weather. And in that lousy, puny, crummy, Stinkin', measly ninety days we just Got to get outside and get together!

I said, I said, we got to Get outside and get together.

And then at night after we been Skinny-dippin in the pond We got to make a campfire And have a cookout on the lawn.

"Take-Out" Chef Hideo Kikuchi Prepares Delicious Offerings at the Rutland Area Food Co-op

by Nancy Surette

This is what Hideo Kikuchi has been taught and believes: he releases his positive energy with every chop of the knife and sends his well wishes for good health into everything he prepares. Hideo is the "Take-out" Chef at the Rutland Area Food Co-op in Rutland, VT. And the Co-op is very fortunate to have him on their staff.

Hideo was born in Yamagata, Japan where his father was a Sushi Chef. When Hideo turned 18, he worked in Tokyo for four years in a French restaurant, and he learned Japanese cooking on his day off. Vacations were spent traveling Europe in search of authentic regional cuisine. He spent a lot of time eating, observing, and absorbing the traditional atmosphere of each place. He then moved to Bulgaria and for the next three years he cooked for the Japanese Embassy there.

Some time later, he came to America and settled in Boston. While trying to help a friend who was being attacked, Hideo was injured and spent two months in a hospital and four additional months in bed. While recuperating, he became aware of, and later enrolled in, The Kushi Institute. The Institute's founders, Mishio Kushi and his wife Aveline, had become famous for their teachings in the Macrobiotic way of cooking and of life. Here, Hideo began the process of his own healing while learning the macrobiotic principles that encompass the whole person's wellness, and the elements necessary to create that wellness, from the food eaten to the environment in which human beings place themselves. He was introduced to a nurse, Debbie, a Vermont native, who later became his wife and would bring Hideo to Rutland.

The next eight years were spent at the Kushi Institute. Hideo not only learned about macrobiotic cooking, he also became a practitioner of Shiatsu Massage. These experiences eventually led him to the Kintaro Restaurant in Great Barrington, Massachusetts, where he worked for six years. Here he practiced macrobiotic cooking and offered sessions in Shiatsu Massage on his days off.

In preparing food for the take-out department at the Co-op, Hideo uses fresh, organic and local items in his cooking as much as possible, and he cooks for the health and well-being of the person his food will nourish. Salt, herbs and spices are used sparingly, as too much of anything going into the body can change from medicine to poison, yet the food is absolutely delightful. He creates wonderful sandwiches and soups.

Daily offerings include two soups, one made from chicken, beef or fish, and one vegetarian-friendly. They might include a miso vegetable soup, a black bean & Japanese sweet potato soup, chicken noodle soup, a seafood chowder, or a beef curry soup. Popular sandwich choices may include teriyaki salmon, turkey and cheese, or ginger-carrot tofu. They also offer a gluten-free hummus wrap. A delicious dish that customers can't seem to get enough of is the sesame slippery noodles.

All these delicious choices and more are available daily. If you have not tried Hideo's soups, sandwiches and salads, please stop by for a treat. You'll be glad to discover this culinary treasure, right here in Rutland.

The Rutland Area Food Co-op is located at 77 Wales St. in downtown Rutland, VT. The Co-op is open Monday-Saturday 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. and Sunday 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. For more information call (802) 773-0737. or visit www.rutlandcoop.com.

A Fable

The mountain and the squirrel Had a quarrel, And the former called the latter "Little Prig!" Bun replied, "You are doubtless very big; But all sorts of things and weather Must be taken in together To make up a year And a sphere. And I think it no disgrace To occupy my place. If I'm not so large as you You are not so small as I And not half so spry. I'll not deny you make A very pretty squirrel track; Talents differ; all is well and wisely put; I cannot carry forests on my back, Neither can you crack a nut."

Summer Notes circa 1883

by Edward Martin Taber

After the tornado of yeswood, where branches are strewn, and trunks prostrate; even while there I hear a tree come down with a splintering sound—a prolonged crash.

As I cross the mowing in the long grass, the ripe nodding heads of timothy look like a purple ripple on a green sea.

of the thrush, its large eye -its looks are no less distinguished than its song. The other night a hoot owl in the sugar-wood.

A flock of snowbirds uttering a hard unfamiliar cry, and I hear the chickadees flying, a large one fluttering

What a walk in the cool terday, a walk in the south night air-a hint, a tinge of iciness. "One star of such abundant lustre hung low above that pallid gleam"—a faint suggestion of a semisunset hue above the western hills—a pale dawning at nine o'clock.

Loud sound of running water, wherever water runs, falling of a sudden on the The strange and elfin look ear-difference of degrees of past eight. Birds-mountainside, the valley, ringing with answering calls. Later (a thrush?) a soft musical call out of the darkening woods.

Spider webs in the air. Winged things-mothsmake their winter note. Ther- in front of my eyes. Sweet mometer all day fifty-eight scents. Gurgling, tinkling waterfalls. Quantities of fire-Few stars in moon-flooded flies—hillside spangled—on sky. Stars shone dim, faint in grassy mound, dancing under the moon...

Northeast Animal-Power Field Days at the NOFA Conference

Animal-Power Field Days attendees work with draft will be held in conjunction with the Northeast Organic Farming Association (NOFA) annual Summer mini-horses, calves, and a Conference held August 12-14 at the University of Massachusetts Research Farm in South Deerfield, MA.

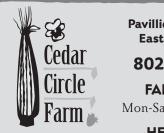

The Northeast Animal-Power Field Days (NEAPFD) is an educational event focused on the use of draft animal power in farming and logging. It was previously held at the World's Fairgrounds in Tunbridge, VT the Field Days.

More than 30 experienced teamsters from across the Northeast will share their knowledge and skills. Some of the those presenting include Sam Rich, 2007 National horse-drawn Plow Champion; Robert Crichton, who has been farming with mules for over thirty years; and Kenneth Mulder, Phd. who teaches applied oxen power at Green Mountain College in Putney, VT.

There will be upwards of 40 oxen, mules, draft horses, mini-horses, and draft ponies working in a variety of settings. The event will span the full three days of the conference-Friday through Sunday—and will feature over 40 workshops covering a broad range of topics for both the curious novice and the professional teamster.

Workshops take place on everything from selecting calves to animal-powered grain production; from ox yoke- making to logging equipment innovations; from hands-on driving for beginners to perfection plowing, loch lyme lodge & CABINS

This year the Northeast and dozens more to help animals. There will be opportunities for children and teens to handle and drive cow!

On Sunday morning Natural Roots farm in Conway, MA will host an in-depth tour, featuring demonstrations of equipment innovations and techniques used in this horse-powered produce operation.

In addition to the workshops, animals, equipment, and community at the Northeast Animal-Power Field Days, registration includes the NOFA Summer Conference as well. The NOFA Summer Conference features over 200 workshops on farming, gardening, alternative energy, homesteading, crafts, and more.

This year's NOFA keynote speakers are Eric Toensmeier, perennial edible-forest gardening expert, and Dr. Ignacio Chapela, GMO activist and Biology Professor from UC Berkeley. =Each evening features live entertainment, and Saturday afternoon will feature a farmer's market, country fair, and silent auction. Dormitory housing and camping are available on the UMass campus. The NOFA Children's Conference provides hands-on learning opportunities for ages 5-12 and the Teen Conference offers workshops for people in junior high and high school.

UVM Center for Sustainable Agriculture

Sustainable Agriculture & Organic Farming Workshops

It's summertime and harvest season is around the corner. Sustainable agriculture is large in Vermont and there are many resources for both the established farmer and those just starting, large or small. Here are some of the workshops coming up in August.

Introduction to Starting a Commercial Goat Dairy. August 6, 9:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. Consider Bardwell Farm, West Pawlet, VT. This workshop will offer the basics for starting a goat dairy with former Vermont Small Ruminant Dairy specialist, Carol Delaney. Selecting goats, costs, housing, feeding, milking, and marketing will be covered including the decision for selling fluid milk or making cheese. A tour of a commercial farm and lunch with the farmer will offer time to experience an active operation and get questions answered. Please bring clean, washable footwear. Plastic booties will be provided. 300-acre Consider Bardwell Farm was the first cheese-making coop in Vermont, founded in 1864. A century later, Angela Miller is helping to revitalize the tradition with goat's milk from a herd of 100 Oberhaslis. Workshop co-sponsored by the Vermont Sheep and Goat Association. Cost: $40, lunch included. Pre-registration required. Contact NOFA-VT, (802) 434-4122. info@nofavt. org. nofa.org. 12

Beyond Milk: Raw Dairy Processing Class. August 7, 1-4 p.m. Earthwise Farm & Forest, Bethel, VT. Learn how to make Butter, Fromage Blanc & Ricotta in your own kitchen! Get acquainted with adding herbs or other flavors to your final product. With simple instruction and good quality raw milk, it is an easy and exciting activity. Information will be provided about how and where to purchase local, raw milk, instructions for the products made, plus on-line resources for further learning. Bring a container in case you have some uneaten product to take home! Sponsored by Rural Vermont. Cost: $20-$40 sliding scale. Pre-registration is required. Contact Shelby Girard, (802) 223-7222. shelby@ ruralvermont.org.

Exploring New Ideas at the Choiniere Dairy Farm. August 10, 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Choiniere Family Dairy. Highgate Center, VT. The Choiniere Family Farm is a certified organic dairy farm that has been continually working on ways to develop their farm systems. Owner and operator Guy Choiniere will talk about grain production and innovative ways to integrate small grains into a dairy ration, using bedded packcompost to improve pastures and extend the grazing season, and growing tillage radishes to reduce compaction. Cost $15, includes lunch. Pre-registration required. For more information or to register, call the NW Crop and Soils Program at (802) 524-6501.

Beyond Milk: Raw Dairy Processing Class. August 13, 1-3 pm. Hawk's Hill Farm, Barnard, VT. Learn how to make butter, whipped cream, and scones. Cost: $20-$40 sliding scale. Pre-registration is required. Contact Shelby Girard, (802) 223-7222. shelby@ruralvermont.org. 12 10 念

Draft Horse Workshop. August 13 & 27, September 10 & 24. All day. Fair Winds Farm, Brattleboro, VT. This fourday workshop focuses on building your skills & confidence in harnessing, hitching, driving & horse management. We use a single horse and teams for hands-on experience and individual instruction. You will drive from the ground, on a wagon, and a forecart. We cover horse management including the basics of safety, handling, foot care, feeding and horse health. We place a lot of emphasis on clear communication through effective use of the drivers' hands and voice. If you prefer to attend this series on consecutive days, there is a workshop August 16-19. Cost: $495. To register contact Janet Bailey, (802) 254-9067. fairwinds@fairwindsfarm. org. fairwindsfarm.org.

Intro to Sausage-Making and Nofavore Social. August 27, 3:30 to 5:30 pm. Cate Farm, Plainfield, VT. This is a hands-on workshop focusing on teaching you the tools and techniques needed to start making sausage at home. Vermont Salumi is located on Cate Farm and specializes in artisan sausage and dry cured meat production. Peter Colman apprenticed in Italy with on-farm processors and commercial operations and has been making sausage and dry cured meats for the last five years. He recently started Vermont Salumi and processes on a commercial level. Come enjoy a farm tour and some handmade sausage-topped pizzas at the NOFAvore social starting at 5:30 p.m. Cost: $20. To register contact NOFA-VT at (802) 434-4122. info@nofavt.org. nofavt.org.

2nd Annual Fiberfest. August 27 & 28. Twin Pond Retreat, Brookfield, VT. Join us for a weekend of fun with fibers! Activities include: natural dyeing with wild and cultivated Vermont plants with Kate Smith, a dyer's plant walk with Joann Darling, demonstrations in various fiber arts, f craft sharing circles (bring a craft to work on or share with others), and fiber arts vendors. To learn more about Twin Pond Retreat go to www.twinpondretreat.com. To register or for more information contact Jennifer at (802) 276-3839. jennifer@twinpondretreat.com.

News from Banjo Dan New Solo CDs Released by Al Davis and Willy Lindner

by Dan Lindner

OK, friends, hold on to you hats—this is BIG news. At last—finally—both Al Davis and Willy Lindner have recorded "solo" CDs of their original music. These guys, my bandmates for over 35 years, are both terrific songwriters. They've written some of the finest material Banjo Dan and the Mid-nite Plowboys have ever performed, and our recordings down through the years have always featured Willy and Al songs. Both men are accomplished and innovative masters of lyric and melody. Hey, they're my heroes!

Al's project, "Sun Off Snow" is something else. It's not bluegrass, though the instrumentation is primarily acoustic. Al's imagination runs wild on songs about Death hitchhiking on a snowy road, a disillusioned baseball player, a happy-golucky couple plowing the snow, and a whole lot more. His fine voice is front and center, with instrumental and vocal support by "The Dazzlers"—which is to say, members of the Plowboys and hand-picked musicians from Vermont's elite ranks. This is a thoroughly captivating album, and I'm sure you'll love it.

Willy's album, "Life, Still, With Mandolin," is a tour-deforce of bluegrass-inflected music, an ever-changing tapestry of great songs and instrumentals. Like any good "solo" project it's semi-autobiographical, opening with a group of wonderful songs from Willy's early days in Tennessee, moving through some excellent numbers that have sat on the back burner for way too long, right on up to some brand-new compositions. Willy has hand-picked some amazing singers and pickers, including fiddle legend Jon Glik, members of Willy's own very talented family and, of course, the Plowboys. Like Al's CD, this is a collection of wonderful new music that you don't want to miss.

I really love this new music, and if you've enjoyed Banjo Dan and the Mid-nite Plowboys over the years, on recordings or live shows, you have a little hint of what you're going to get from these two ace musicians. But just a little hint, because this music is going to exceed your expectations!

"Life, Still, With Mandolin" and "Sun Off Snow" are being added to the Discography and Ordering pages on our website, www.banjodan.com, and will be sold for the usual $17, which includes postage and packaging. But—get this—for one month only, we're running an introductory "Twofer" offer. Order both new CDs now for $30, and forget the postage and packaging charges. This offer is good through August 15. Send your check for $30, referring to the Twofer offer, to

Distrational designation of the second states of th

~ Thoughts ~ For the Discouraged Farmer

The summer winds is sniffin' round the bloomin' locust trees, And the clover in the pasture is a big day for the bees, And they been a-swiggin' honey, aboveboard and on the sly, Til they stutter in their buzzin' and stagger as they fly. The flicker on the fence-rail 'pears to jest spit on his wings And roll up his feathers, by the sassy way he sings. And the hoss-fly is a-whettin-up his forelegs fer biz, And the off-mare is a-switchin' all of her tail there is.

There's been a heap o' rain, but the sun is out to-day, And the clouds of the wet spell are all cleared away, And the woods is all the greener, and the grass is greener still. It may rain again tomorrow, but I don't think it will. Some say the crops are ruined, and the corn is all drowned out, And prophesy the wheat will be a failure, without doubt. But the kind Providence that has never failed us yet, Will be on hand once more at the 'leventh hour, I bet!

Does the meadow lark complain, as he swims high and dry Through the waves of the wind and the blue of the sky? Does the quail set up and whistle in a disappointed way, Or hang his head in silence, and sorrow all the day? Is the chipmunk's health a-failin'?-does he walk, or does he run? Don't the buzzards ooze around up there jest like they've allus done? Is there anything the matter with the rooster's lungs 'er voice? Ought a mortal be complainin' when dumb animals rejoice?

Then let us, one and all, be contented with our lot. The summer's here this morning, and the sun is shining hot. Oh! let us fill our hearts up with the glory of the day, And banish every doubt and care and sorrow far away! Whatever be our station, with Providence for guide, Such fine circumstances ought to make us satisfied; For the world is full of roses, and the roses full of dew, And the dew is full of heavenly love that drips fer me and you.

A Celebration of Vermont Food & Agriculture

August 20 & 21, 2011 Vermont's Northeast Kingdom

Pile in the car or hop on a bike, but get yourself, your friends and your family to Vermont's Northeast Kingdom for The Kingdom Farm and Food Days, a two-day event on August 20 & 21. Start with self-guided tours of the region's farms, small producers and agricultural businesses and end with a full day of tours, music, workshops and a Local Foods Showcase at the High Mowing Organic Seeds Trial and Showcase Gardens on Marsh Road in Wolcott, VT.

The area's farms, gardens, small producers and agricultural businesses have opened their doors to the public, inviting us in to explore, learn and enjoy. Look for signs that say "Kingdom Farm and Food Days: Open for Tours!" Some locations will offer workshops and demonstrations.

🚰 Children's Summertime Animal Tales 💱

Book Reviews

by Charles Sutton

Children of all ages appreciate good animal adventure in the junkyard, which they have outgrown and are forced to stories, with colorful and amusing drawings, and so much the better if the animals behave or misbehave like people. move from. They weep and wail, "We'll never make it!" "Our ears will freeze!" "I want to go back to our hole!" Thinking the better if the animals behave or misbehave like people. Ś Ś Ś

Boy, Bird, and Dog by David McPhail (Holiday House, www.holidayhouse.com) is a tale in which a little boy figures out how to get his Corgi dog up into his tree house using a pot and a rope. A crow drops in and helps tug the rope to lift the dog up. The pot is used again to haul up a platter of delicious cookies which a much-surprised mom has just baked. In a final scene we see the boy, bird and dog curling up together taking a nap. This is an easy "I Like To Read" book, good for beginners. But the pictures are so captivating that the grown-ups will say "I like to look" over and over again.

You'll recognize David's pictures. He has written and illustrated more than fifty books for children, including the New York Times bestselling When Sheep Sleep by Laura Numeroff (Abrams), and his own Mole Music (Holt), which was a New York Times Book Review Best Illustrated Book of the Year. He lives in Rye, New Hampshire.

Small creatures grow pretty fast creating the need for more space. In 999 Tadpoles by Ken Kimura and illustrated by

Yasunari Murakami (North-South Publishers, northsouth. com), we see that number of tadpoles suddenly becoming small frogs in a pond that is much too small. "We can't move!," calls one. "We can't breath," calls another, "Don't push," calls a third.

Mother and father frog must find a new habitat right away even if the journey there is into a world full of dangerous snakes and hawks. In an exciting drama of survival the frogs all hang on to each other in one long string after the father frog was grabbed by a high-flying hawk. The weight of 999 frogs and their two parents becomes too much and the hawk lets go. The frogs drop through the air and land happily in a big pond!

Finding a new home was also a dangerous adventure for a family of little hamster-like critters in A Place to Call Home by Alexis Deacon and illustrated by Viviane Schwarz (Candlewick Press, www.candlewick.com). We join the brothers living together in their home in a small dark hole they are safe with headgear improvised from tea cups, boots, rubber gloves and a paper towel tube, they fumble their way blindly through the junkyard discovering oceans (puddles) and what seems the ends of the Earth in their intrepid search for a new place to call home. In a bold move for survival they rescue one of their siblings from the junkyard dog. The reader will enjoy the surprise that is the end of their journey. Í -

Monstrous creatures don't always have to be dangerous and scary as we find out in Champ and Me by the Maple Tree, a Vermont Tale by Ed Shankman and illustrated by Dave O'Neill (Shankman and O'Neil Children's Books, shankmanoneill.com). The young heroine of this tale ventures every day to her favorite maple tree until she decides one day to see something new. This leads her to Lake Champlain and she exclaims "It was long. It was wide. It was deep. It was clear." But out of the lake appears a huge monster, Champ-the legend of old Lake Champlain!

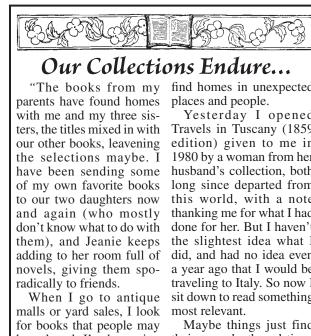

Initially scared, the girl makes friends and the two start to explore dazzling green landscape with its fields, farms and mills. Obviously enjoying its life outside the lake, Champ continues to meet the girl at her maple tree throughout the seasons. We're told that if you visit Vermont and a lake called Champlain, "there's a chance you will see my friend Champ and me...by the old maple tree."

Animals found in Vermont, behaving like people, abound in the humorous story, Three Lessons for Astair the Bear by Martin Brennan and illustrated by Amy Huntington of Williston, VT. (Mitten Press, www.mittenpress.com). Astair may be loveable, but he has bad grooming habits, can be thoughtless and a bit too angry ("I don't care!), and has a habit of buying too many things that he doesn't need. His animal friends help him confront these issues in three episodes where Astair has to learn the hard way-being sprayed by a skunk, being chased by a herds of angry animals, and finally nearly freezing to death when he should have started hibernating for the winter. The expressions on these animals' faces throughout the book will charm you!

A New History of Springfield Is Told Through Photographs

Local author Rosanne machine tool industry; North E. Putnam has written a new book on the history of Springfield, VT. Published by Arcadia Publishing, the book boasts more than 200 vintage photographs, many which have never before been published.

Although Springfield was chartered in 1761, residents did not begin taking advantage of the waterpower on the Black River until the 1800s. Once dams were built to harness the water, mills and factories followed. Innovation could not be stopped, and for the next 150 years one invention or improvement after another emerged from this little town.

Things like the spring clothespin and sandpaper

Springfield; leisure and sports; Charles Lindbergh's visit; and the 1927 flood and the 1938 hurricane.

Author Rosanne E. Putnam grew up in Springfield and currently writes a weekly historical column, "Picture the Past," for the local paper. She also serves as President of the Friends of the Springfield Town Library. Most of the images in Springfield have come from the Springfield Town Library collection and the Whitcomb glass slide collection, with others culled from personal and public archives.

Putnam hopes the book will "encourage readers to realize that it was the creative people with new ideas that took Springfield from little mills along the river to a world-recognized machine tool manufacturing community. As the town looks for a new identity, it is a new world and it will take a new set of people with new ideas to start
